Pacifism. Jihad. Militarism. Are these our only alternatives for dealing with global injustice today? J. Daryl Charles leads us to reconsider a Christian view of the use of force to maintain or reestablish justice. He shows how love for a neighbor can warrant the just use of force. Reviewing and updating the widely recognized but not necessarily well-understood just-war teaching of the church ...

Other Christians believe that vengeance is God's alone and thus to retaliate is to sin. J. Daryl Charles's book, Between Pacifism and Jihad provides a middle position between these two opposite approaches. Charles suggests that there is a mean between the two vices of pacifism on the one hand and militarism on the other.

While this is the main point of just war theory, Charles criticizes pacifism because the ideological pacifist believes that "coercive force and war can never serve a just end" (p. 20). As an ideology, pacifism would allow evil and injustice to run roughshod over the rights of good, law-abiding human beings. The just war tradition, he argues, "begins with the presumption to restrain evil and protect the innocent, not to forbid coercive force" (p. 19). But Charles seems to conflate non ...
